WHY READ?

Numerous studies have shown that children who do not read during the summer actually lose skills by the beginning of the next school year. Reading is an accrued skill, like riding a bicycle—the more you do it, the better you get at it. The last 30 years of reading research confirms this simple formula—regardless of sex, race, nationality, or socioeconomic background. Students who read the most, read the best, achieve the most, and stay in school the longest. Conversely, those who don't read much, cannot get better at it.
